

No break seen in Jeff strike

Striking teachers and office employees resumed picketing of Jefferson Union High School District schools Tuesday morning while a state mediator tried to get stalled negotiations going again.

The strike by the American Federation of Teachers Local 1481 began last Wednesday, with the opening of the school year. The first three days of school were minimum days, with classes led by substitute teachers ending at noon. Monday was the Admission Day holiday, with no school, and today was the first full day of scheduled classes.

The strike has been highlighted so far by the arrest of 13 strikers Friday, but one more was taken into custody Tuesday, he for the second time.

AFT Local Vice President Bill Curran, a teacher at Oceana High School, was arrested at about 8:15 a.m. at Jefferson High in Daly City.

Officer Lester Keate reported seeing Curran pounding on cars of non-strikers as they entered the school grounds. Three cars were damaged, Keate said. Curran was booked at the Daly City jail on suspicion of malicious mischief and bail set at $250.

Over 100 AFT members met at a closed rally at Gellert Park in Daly City Tuesday morning to hear the union leadership warn against scuffling with local police, whom they said were neutral in this dispute.

AFT President Marcy Ballard said after the meeting there had been "some misunderstandings" about the role of the police at the school grounds and "Some employees feel their (the police) role of neutrality really isn't that."

"The employees recognize that police officers are a very different set of people than hired guards," she went on, noting that eight "hired scab guards, strikebreakers," were stationed at Oceana High Tuesday morning. "No other district in this state has hired so many strike-breaking guards," she charged.

"Anger and hostility are at a very high peak and we're doing everything in our power to keep a temperate environment," Mrs. Ballard said.

"The employees have a very vind-

Tomasello bids fond farewell

By JOHN CURRY
Post Staff Writer

Daly City Recreation Superintendent Edward J. Tomasello has spent the past few weekends house-hunting in Martinez.

The reason? He's moving there to become that city's director of leisure and social services as of next Monday.

His last day on the job in Daly City is Friday, but he hasn't moved yet from his home near Mussel Rock Park, so "It looks like I'm going to have a 100-mile commute every day for awhile."

This will be an upward move for Tomasello, born and raised in San Francisco and a 19-year veteran with the Daly City Recreation, Parks and Maintenance Department.

Starting in 1960 as a recreation supervisor, Tomasello became general supervisor of recreation in a 1967 restructuring of the department, and in 1971 was named superintendent of recreation in another reorganization. He spent a year in 1973 as superintendent of parks after the retirement of the "green legend," Augie Conci.

In Martinez, he'll be a department head, branching out from recreation and sports, his first love since his days as a physical education major at San Francisco State University, into social responsibilities such as senior citizen and child work.

"It could be anything," Tomasello speculated about the new post to which the Martinez City Council named him two weeks ago.

Tomasello said he would be around to help Daly City in some grant areas and projects, such as Hillside Park, Lincoln Park and Mussel Rock Park, with which he is so familiar, having done so much of Subdivision election fails in Westlake

Another Westlake subdivision election to eliminate the conditions, covenants and restrictions on the Daly City residential properties failed over the weekend, but the chief organizer of the Subdivision 7A election says the battle will continue in court.

The vote over the weekend at the Westlake Subdivisions Improvement Association office was 53 to terminate the CC&Rs, 35 against, with about 22.4 percent of the 394 households casting a ballot each.

But under the WSIA 50 percent rule, the vote to terminate needed over half the 394 owners to carry, according to WSIA Director William Wade, so it failed.

The 88 ballots cast represented the smallest turnout of any of the three subdivision elections so far this year, Wade said, adding that he saw the vote as a clear mandate from homeowners that they want to keep the present CC&Rs in force.

Of the 1,004 properties involved in the elections this year, about one-sixth of the entire Westlake home ownership, the total negative vote has been around 8 percent, he said.

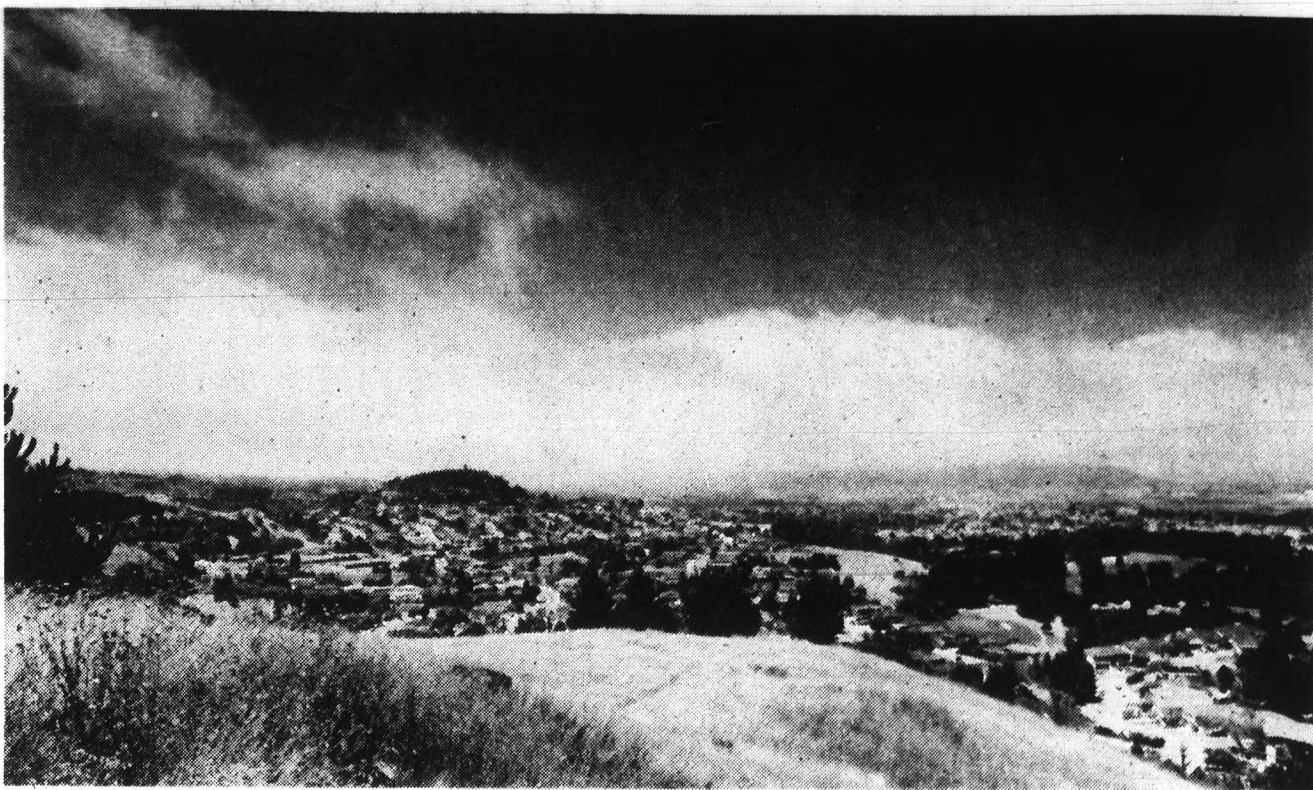

Under the original CC&Rs set down by developer Henry Doelger when these Westlake subdivisions were built, the expiration dates were set at 25 years. Residents of the first five subdivisions whose CC&Rs expired asked for no elections and these were extended automatically for another 10 years, as were those on the subdivisions who did have elections.

But the prime mover of the Subdivision 7A election, Robert Templeman, 42 Fairview Ave., said

Tuesday the residents of the first five subdivisions didn't even know they had the right to elections until someone looked through the papers and discovered it.

That is one of the points he said he is asking a judge to examine in the suit he filed in Superior Court last Monday against the WSIA.

THE FOG ROLLS IN

It's as much a part of SF as cable cars

By TERRY DAVENPORT
Post Staff Writer

It causes car accidents, it decreases real estate values and it makes some people melancholy — but others can't live without it.

It's as much a part of San Francisco as cable cars and as foreign to San Jose as snow.

In San Mateo County, you see it lingering on coastal mountain tops almost ever summer afternoon before it wisps down the ridge to blanket the upper reaches of the county in the early evening.

In case you haven't guessed, it is fog.

Carl Sandburg described it in a flattering way:

The fog comes on little cat feet.

It sits looking over harbor and city on silent haunches and then moves on.

But that same gentle presence can be a killer.

Highway 1 and Skyline Boulevard are two stretches of roadway in the North County that are particularly susceptible to fog. A dense blanket caused 30 cars to snack into one another last July 3 on a portion of Skyline Boulevard in Daly City.

A different blend of weather conditions produces the notorious tule fogs (pronounced TWO lee) in the Central Valley.

The California Highway Patrol said tule fog causes at least one major chain reaction on Highway 5 and three or four multiple-car accidents near Sacramento every year.

The statistics were worse a few years ago, before the CHP began a public awareness program called "Operation Fog."

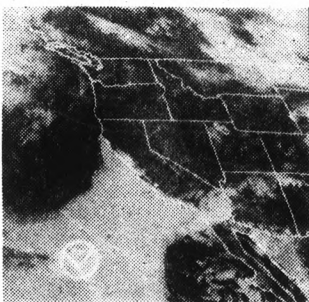

It warns motorists:

- Avoid driving in fog.
- If you must go out, drive with your regular headlights on — not the bright lights, because they can bounce off the fog and blind you.
- Slow down.
- Avoid intersections.
- If you are involved in an accident, get your vehicle off the road as quickly as possible.

Fog also decreases the value of property.

Barbara Carr, a Pacifica real estate agent, estimated that the same three-bedroom, one-bathroom house would sell for $3,000 more in Pacifica's sunny southern zone than in its foggy northern zone.

Although she said some prospective buyers want to live in fog zones (mainly those used to living in San Francisco). Mrs. Carr said far more families move from Pacifica's foggy areas to its sunny south end than in the opposite direction.

On the other side of the hill, Cheryl Manick, a South San Francisco real estate agent, said it's difficult to compare house prices in neighboring cities but she estimated that a ranch-style, three-bedroom, two-bathroom home that sells for $125,000 in a foggy part of San Bruno would go for $175,000 in sunny Millbrae.

But fog does have some advantages.

Lt. Phil Labruzzo of the Daly City Police Department said he believes fog is one of the reasons Daly City's crime rate drops during the summer.

When you aren't traveling in it, fog is a pleasure to behold. After all, what trip to the Bay Area would be complete without a glimpse of Golden Gate Bridge half shrouded in a cotton candy cloud?

San Franciscans tell you that the low mourning of their foghorns is music to their ears.

They are so proud of their "liquid sunshine," as they call it, that souvenir shops even sell mock tins of "San Francisco Fog" for visitors to take home.

Considering the effects fog has on humans, it's odd that man doesn't have more scientific ways of predicting when and where fog will meander.

As he looked out his picture window at San Francisco International Airport and described the thick white bank hanging over San Bruno one recent afternoon, Phillip Swain of the National Weather Service sounded more like a swami than the exacting weather forecaster he is.

He said the most predictable things about local fog are that it usually occurs from May through early September and that it lasts

FOG EXPERT PHILLIP SWAIN

Before leaving on a trip, you can find out about fog hazards on roadways by calling the California Department of Transportation's recording at 557-3755.

The National Weather Service will answer specific questions about weather conditions at 876-2886.

The true weather junkie can buy a special "weather radio" and tune into the Weather Service's station, KHB 49, which broadcasts weather reports on the frequency of 162.55 megahertz.

longest when the weather is the Central Valley is hottest.

He explained that fog, like all weather, is caused by differences in temperature and that it's difficult to predict just when, where or how long fog-inviting conditions will exist.

The misty white clouds we see along the coast are formed, he said, when air warmed by land (causing a low pressure system) flows over cold water (a high pressure system).

Although water vapor always remains in the air, it becomes visible only when the temperature drops below a certain point — the "dewpoint."

Swain described this type of fog — called "advection fog" — as a continual tug of war in which the fog moves toward warm land and, upon finding it, turns into invisible water vapor again and dissipates.

"The fog is essentially there all the time," he said. "It's just a matter of how far off the coast it is."

(The tule fogs that plague the Central Valley from November through March are caused by a different set of conditions.)

Technically known as "radiation fog," this variety is formed by the cooling of air near the surface of the ground on clear nights. This type of fog usually forms in the early morning hours. It is retarded by winds and clouds.

Swain said the inland movement of advection fog, pushed by ocean breezes, is inhibited by obstructions like the coastal mountains that run down the spine of the Peninsula.

The lifting of the air up the side of a mountain causes the water vapor to condense, but it dries out as it moves down the other side, Swain explained. That's why, he said, you so often see fog lingering over the tops of hills.

The North County has far more fog than the South County because the same hills that rise 1,900 feet tall in the Redwood City area are only 600 feet tall in the Daly City area.

Swain said one cut in the mountains in the North County, called the "San Bruno Gap," is a mere 300 feet tall and is the area through which the fog first sneaks.

Asked if a tall concrete barrier along the "Gap" would significantly reduce the amount of fog the North County experiences, Swain agreed.

But most people probably would find such a suggestion distasteful.

Given a choice between having The Great Wall of San Bruno and our current, unpredictable, romantic, crime-reducing summertime fogs, who wouldn't vote for the "little cat feet?"

BICYCLING IN THE FOG

A student's view on teacher strike

By GENNY HOM
Student Body President
Serramonte High School

Mention the word strike to students of the Jefferson Union High School District and we'd probably stare at you with a certain look in our eyes — a look of experience.

After a long, carefree summer, we sauntered back to school. We came back ready to hit the books again, and to learn to learn that our transportation, sports programs, field trips, clubs and other extra-curricular activities had been cut, not to mention our teachers were on strike again.

For the second year in a row, our teachers and our school district, two groups which I have always thought were concerned about providing us with a good education, were at each other's throats, battling it out, starting World War III.

Well, I was wrong. Neither the district nor the teacher's union cares about what happens to their students. That is, they don't seem to care. Last year we lost three weeks of our education and this year looks like a re-run of last. Perhaps we'll lose out on even more than three weeks.

The district and the teachers' union are farther apart than they have ever been, and unfortunately the effects of that separation have appeared on a totally innocent party — students.

The situation between the district and the union is in one respect like a family brawl between parents — that is in the sense that it is the children who are the ones who are torn in the middle and are hurt the most.

Who then has taken the responsibility of educating us students? The district? The union? The answer is neither, even though that task lies on both their shoulders.

While teachers are out marching in the picket lines, the district has hired substitutes to fill in for them in the classroom.

Let me give you just one example of what a substitute had to do last year. In a U.S. history class we were told to write a paragraph on what we did over the summer — something I had not been asked to do since I was in the second grade.

Let's face it, the substitutes aren't teaching, they're babysitting.

Two years in a row of this power struggle is enough. I believe since the district and teachers have a common cause between them — the students — they should come together and compromise.

In the meantime, I believe the schools should be closed down. What have we got to lose by keeping the schools open? PLenty. We're losing thousands of dollars, and more importantly, the morale of the student body and the public's faith in education.

Despite the Average Daily Attendance Law (ADA) in which the district gets money for each student attending classes, I believe no amount of money that the district can get from it can make up for the loss of student morale and public faith.

Students already have been the losers in this battle. We already have endured drastic budget cuts. We have lost our sports programs, transportation, field trips, extra-curricular activities and elective classes. Our education already has been hindered, the strike is just worsening it.

The battle rages on. The union and the district are on opposite ends of the battle field. The union fires a shot, the district fires back.

Amidst the smoke and flames, a battered student lies, injured, between the two belligerent groups. I ask the teachers and the district — how many student casualties will there be before this war is finally over?

LEAVING DALY CITY AFTER 19 YEARS

Edward J. Tomasello is going to work for the city of Martinez.

the paperwork on getting federal and state money for them.

Martinez, with a population of 21,000, is about where Daly City was in 1960 after five years as the director of recreation for the 10,000-resident Parkmerced development in San Francisco.

Martinez has the same potential for growth, but maybe with more available land than Daly City. The time of growth is the most exciting time to be working for a city, Tomasello asserted. "Maybe some of my experience in Daly City will be of benefit to Martinez."

For growth, Tomasello can look back on a lot of it during his years in Daly City. He recalled that he was alone for his first five years as a recreation supervisor, with one other full-time employee and 15 volunteer recreation leaders.

Today, Recreation, Parks and Maintenance Director Charles E. Vincent has three supervisors, Tomasello one of them, nine other full-time workers and 130 part-time recreation leaders to work with. Daly City's growth to a population of 59,000, mostly families with children, has meant tremendous growth in citizen participation, too, at the new pools, parks and facilities built to accommodate them.

Tomasello said he's particularly proud of the way the city has responded to its recreational needs. "The City Council has been berated for doing some things wrong, but it also has done some things right," he said.

He also can name names ad infinitum of individuals who have assisted with the many recreational programs over the years, saying such things as the Better Youth Association, Police Athletic League, the old San Pedro Lunch baseball team and more recently the Serramonte Athletic League, the programs at Our Lady of Mercy, Holy Angels, etc., wouldn't have been possible without them.

"I don't think the people of the city realize how important this is, and was. There are 300 men now who help every Saturday with over 1,000 kids in our organized leagues in baseball, basketball and volleyball. The adult volunteers have been one of the strong supports of the recreation program. The city couldn't afford it," Tomasello said.

The indirect contributors have been just as valuable over the years, he went on, citing the city Recreation Commission, which has done its work with little publicity, the Gellert Foundation for their cash contributions for facilities not necessarily within their own housing developments, and old-timers Al Kane, Tony Aiello and Frank Spadarella among others, the latter for readily contributing prizes for recreation tournament winners.

As growth goes, Tomasello was on top of it in more ways than one. He also served seven years, from 1967 to 1973, on the Jefferson Elementary School District Board of Trustees, when the district hit its peak enrollment of some 10,000 students, Tomasello recalling reading classes in broom closets.

Now, with schools closing because of declining enrollment, Tomasello said he thinks it's about time cities and schools worked closer together on recreational needs, with the city's know-how and the schools' facilities, since they serve the same constituents and "Times are changing."

Another benefit would be in communications, at which the schools excel, but at which recreation departments have been poor, he went on.

Tomasello said he would leave happy about two recent developments. "We suffered horribly from Proposition 13," he recalled, "but as the picture cleared up the City Council was very diligent about applying back the resources into the recreation program as they were available. And they brought it up themselves," referring particularly to Councilman James Tucker.

The department also got permission this year for the first time to submit its yearly budget in March instead of June, so its summer programs can be studied adequately and funded for this year's real and not next year's projected needs.

"This allows much better planning," Tomasello asserted.

One thing he's looking forward to in Martinez is the opportunity to work with troubled youngsters.

"The problem is different than recreation work. We worked with the county Probation Department here 10 or 12 years ago, but it was dropped. But combining social services with recreation shows a trend toward bringing solutions back to the cities rather than leaving them at the county level. We have the tools for working with youngsters who need help. A probation officer can see a kid once a month. What can he really do? We can see him every day. I think there's some real potential there," he said.

Tomasello said he had to give up wrestling when he came to Daly City "because the hours were so long at first." Actually, he's Ed Tomasello Jr. His father, who went by the ring name of Tommy Sello, was one of San Francisco's best-known boxers in the 1920s and 1930s, and fought all over the world.

Tomasello said hunting and fishing "are my big ones" now, and moving to Martinez, near the Carquinez Straits and a short hop from the Delta, probably won't hurt the fishing any.

He said he might even buy a boat. "There's one in every yard in Martinez," he noted.

Tomasello and wife Joanne have a son, Tim, with the computer services division of Standard Oil Co., who recently presented them with a new granddaughter; and two daughters, Pam Seculich, employed in the South San Francisco city Personnel Department, and Jana Tomasello, a travel agent in San Francisco.

jective school board. We've waited 24 hours a day to sit down and negotiate, but to reach a settlement, two parties have to sit down, one from each side with authority to reach agreement," she went on.

AFT spokesman Tom Fitzpatrick said Tuesday that 90 percent of the teachers, who make up the majority of the local's 411 members, have remained off the job during the strike.

Figures from the district office Tuesday, however, showed 80 regular staff teachers, or 27 percent, reporting for work along with 160 to 175 substitutes, and 3,405 students, or about 52 percent of the district enrollment.

It was at the demonstrations at Oceana and Terra Nova high schools that Pacifica police arrested the 13 Friday, Curran at Oceana and the other 12 at Terra Nova, when they entered the schools and refused to leave when ordered by the principals.

Pickets legally may be stationed off the school grounds but are subject to arrest if they enter.

In the meantime, it was reported, state Mediation and Conciliation Service mediator Michael West has refused a union request to submit the current contract dispute to a fact-finding panel, possibly keeping the case in his hands until the permissible 15 days, or longer if he sees a possibility of settlement.

The two sides were reported far apart after the weekend, however. The AFT has offered to go back to work if their pay demands are submitted to binding arbitration on negotiations on a long list of rights and benefits resume. The district has suggested the teachers go back to work while the differences are hammered out through advisory arbitration, which officials claim is the only avenue legally open to the district.

District Superintendent Floyd Gonella said Friday he sees a long strike, possibly three or four weeks, the length of time it would take a fact-finding panel to formulate its recommendations.

The AFT struck the district for 13 days last year.

The suit also alleges that the 50 percent rule is unconstitutional and that $50 a month in homeowners' WSIA dues money is being paid to the WSIA office manager's secretary for use of her own car on business but that no proper mileage records are being kept, Templeman said.

"Actually, we weren't displeased with the result of the vote this weekend," Templeman said Monday. A 53-35 vote to terminate shows the sentiment is there. But part of the thrust of our suit is on the way the elections are set up. It's impossible to get the vote out. This neighborhood gets only 20 to 25 percent of its registered voters out to vote for things like Proposition 13. We can't be expected to do anything else. We say the election set-up is unconstitutional. The WSIA board has changed the bylaws so board members can be elected by simple majority."

Templeman said he expected the judge to set a hearing for October on the suit.

"Our point is that we want to end this thing of having the association being able to do and say whatever it wants," Templeman said.

He added, "The association seems to do everything it can to maintain the status quo rather than do everything it can to get a determination of the people about what it should do."

"The association is a dominant factor, with homeowners subservient to it. This is no way to run an association," he said.

Supervisors delay vote

Odd-even gasoline sales will continue at San Mateo County service stations for at least another week.

The Board of Supervisors Tuesday delayed action on a request that Governor Brown end the rationing plan until next Tuesday so more information can be gathered on local fuel supplies and consumption.

Board members concurred that there has not yet been adequate study to determine if the apparent easing in the gas crunch will continue or if supplies will be cut back in the months ahead.

Supervisor John Ward had urged his colleagues to ask the governor to terminate the odd-even method, citing shorter gas lines and the fact that station owners are no longer uniform in enforcing the rationing plan.

He said many dealers have asked that they be allowed to resume normal selling practices, some of them having complained that they are being forced to turn away customers when there was plenty of gas to sell.

Ward submitted to the board a report prepared by William Hinchcliff, director of the Area Disaster Council and charged with monitoring gas sales countywide, which showed that several major petroleum companies plan to increase their allocations to stations next month.

"The odd-even method has been effective in relieving an intolerable situation," commented the supervisor, "but I really question whether it should be continued."

Ward conducted a "phone-in" Tuesday to gauge public opinion on ending odd-even, which, he said, revealed overwhelming support for a return to any day gas sales.

Some history on origins of game of chess

By ARVILLE FINACOM

The room is relatively quiet. There is some smoking. Soft drink cans are a common sight. Paired participants sit opposite one another at the long cafeteria tables. The checkered boards, the carved pieces, the double dials clocks between the players mark the event as a chess tournament.

Although Ben Franklin wrote a book about the "good effects" of chess playing published in 1786 and many Americans, especially European immigrants, maintained a quiet interest in the ancient game in the intervening years, popular American interest can probably be dated to the Fischer/Spassky World Chess Championship match played in Iceland seven years ago.

The United States, with Grand Master Fischer as its champion, hoped to defeat the Russians who had dominated international play since the end of World War II.

Hopes were high and George Koltanowski, an international master who lives in the Bay Area and writes a popular chess column, played simultaneous games in the game department of a downtown San Francisco store.

Koltanowski also interpreted results of the Fischer/Spassky match whose moves were posted continuously on a large display board.

The beginnings of chess are fairly well detailed. Some 1,500 years ago a philosopher on the Indian subcontinent developed the game which symbolized a battle between two armies. Its first name, chaturanga, means "army game." From India, the game spread east to China and Japan and west to the Persian Court.

By the year 800, chess was known and played in the Eastern Roman Empire.

The knowledge and popularity of the game probably spread into Europe through Spain following the route of the Muslims across North Africa.

There is evidence that chess playing was a widespread activity among European nobility, both men and women, by the fifteenth century despite arguments against it by the Roman Catholic Church.

Previously, it had been banned in the Eastern Catholic Church and even among Muslims if they played with carved pieces which could in any way be representative of living creatures.

So popular was chess, however, that both Muslims and Catholics examined and reinterpreted ecclesiastical law in order to allow the game to be played without religious penalty.

In fact, the Roman church began to use the principles of chess as a religious instruction device in order to develop a system of moralities and by the fifteenth century, at the height of Middle Ages pomp and chivalry, the Church declared that chess was a "proper" amusement for a knight.

Minstrels carried chess sets and boards with them and often played between courts was conducted using the traveling troubadours as messengers.

Chess rules have not always been uniform. Variations existed from country to country until 1929 when a universal chess code was adopted.

Even the names and functions of the pieces have changed over the years. The name "pawn" comes from the Spanish "peon" and means "laborer." In a modern chess set, the eight pawns for each side are look-alikes.

Before the 18th century, the pawns indicated different kinds of labor and were depicted as iron or woodworkers, inn keepers, couriers, bankers, physicians or any number of other kinds of workers. Today's chess "Queen" was originally the King's "minister." It's interesting to speculate about how the most powerful board piece changed from male to female identity.

Although women do play — the first Women's International Tournament was in 1897, two years after the first ever "ladies" tournament took place — chess seems to be a man's game, judging by the few women who enter local play.

Chess also seems to be a game that men do better at winning. I suppose psychologists could rationalize the situation by saying that chess involves logic, reasoning, aggressiveness, risk taking and playing the odds, all characteristically male methods. Few chess games are won by playing "intuitively."

In early Indian chess, the pawns were considered the foot soldiers and a modern master has said, "The pawn is the soul of the game."

The pawn also is the first piece usually moved and countless books have been written about chess detailing the best opening moves. Certain moves and defenses have become classic and are often called by the names of the chess masters who introduced and played them consistently.

Despite the fact that some still call chess playing "a waste of time," the modern game has been promoted as "mind training" as well as "education for leisure." Russian schools, especially, stress the "logic developing" and "mind exercising" aspects of the game which is today part of every Russian primary student's experience.

Locally, two clubs give members a chance to practice weekly as well as participate in regular tournament play.

The Daly City Chess Club meets Tuesdays. Call Carl Barton at 731-9171 for details. The Burlingame/San Mateo Chess Club meets Thursday evenings at the Burlingame Recreation Center, 850 Burlingame Ave. Drop-in observers or players are always welcome.

Pets have tonsils as well

By DR. DAVID R. BARNETT

Question: My 8-year-old dog, "Muffin," is beginning to show signs of aging — in the past year he has had throat, skin and leg problems. What can I do to help him?

Answer: Many pet owners are surprised to learn that their dogs and cats, too, have tonsils.

From time to time, the tonsils, as well as the tissues in back of the throat, and the flap, or epiglottis, which protects the entrance to the windpipe, should be closely examined.

Animal Forum

An evaluation of the larynx or "voice box" and trachea, which is the pathway to the lungs, should also be made. During an examination the veterinarian will switch from visual to auditory senses to examine the lungs.

A stethoscope, to magnify the sounds of the lungs, will be used as part of the screening process. The results of this "screening" will determine if further exams or tests are necessary.

It is important to remember that the skin is an organ! In fact, the skin is the largest organ of the body. The condition of the skin and hair coat are health indicators. For example, a dry, no-luster coat often signals a health problem. Many health condition facts can be obtained from the feel, odor and visual appearance of the skin and hair coat.

Part of the examination of the skin will include looking for evidence of fleas, ticks and other parasites, tumors, wounds and infections. The lymph nodes under the skin will be checked.

Some skin diseases can be quickly identified. Others may require skin scrapings, tissue biopsies or allergy tests to identify the problem. Some skin problems such as fungus or mange may require laboratory analysis.

Pets can become infested with external parasites such as fleas, lice and ticks, which cause skin problems. Fortunately, most are easy to detect or identify for proper treatment.

In a leg examination, the veterinarian will use his eyes and sense of touch to determine the structure and mobility of the animal's limbs. Close attention will be paid to the animal's joints for possible deformation, inflammation or disease.

The feet and foot pads will also be carefully checked for soreness, deformities or imbedded matter.

Jordanian airline president tells of hidden costs in the Mideast conflict

By GEORGE GOLDING

If there were peace in the Middle East, it would take 40 minutes to fly from Amman in Jordan to Cairo in Egypt.

As it is, the flight takes two hours and 10 minutes, according to Ali Ghandour, president of Alia, the Royal Jordanian airline. During this year, 85 million gallons of fuel will be wasted by such extended flights.

He said the solution is for the United States to bring about peace by convincing Israel to solve the Palestinian problem.

The result could be measured in dollars, Ghandour told members of the Pacific division of the U.S.-Arab Chamber of Commerce meeting in San Francisco.

Ghandour was in the Bay Area to survey this region as the possible new destination for his airline.

Alia has applied for permission to fly to the West Coast, either Los Angeles or San Francisco. If the choice is up to the airline, he said, selection will be based on which city promises more business.

The Jordanian airline's 747s already make daily flights from Amman to New York and Houston.

Ghandour said he hopes to fly to another Midwest city, such as Chicago, and to the West Coast within a year.

The fuel required for these flights could be saved by ending overflight restrictions of Arab nations and Israel that exist because of constant tension and distrust, he said.

Ghandour said the Amman-Cairo flight is merely one of hundreds which are extended, at great cost to the world's fuel supply, because neither Israel nor the Arab nations will permit a plane to fly over one of those countries, if it has crossed another in the same flight.

Every week, 658 scheduled passenger flights of Arab carriers and 580 flights of other carriers are affected by this restriction.

Additional hours flown each year run into a figure of 15,000 for Arab carriers, 11,000 for foreign carriers, 5,000 for charter operators, and 3,000 for all-cargo services.

The resulting total of 34,000 flying hours per year burns off 85 million gallons of fuel.

The cost of that fuel, at present prices, is about $60 million U.S. dollars.

"Another cash expense which airlines will save if there is peace," Ghandour said, "will be the direct maintenance cost of over $20 million U.S. dollars per year."

Ghandour said the price of war is, of course, much greater than those hard numbers. There is the loss of life, the continuing distrust, the lack of communications between nations.

"Without a just peace," Ghandour said, "progress and growth are necessarily limited. That is not a healthy situation for us Arabs nor is it any healthier for the Israelis."

The airline leader said he would not attempt to provide a specific solution, but feels that one can be found.

"We in Jordan are convinced that the only solution is for the United States to take an active leadership role in the situation and help resolve the Palestinian question and all other obstacles standing in the way of peace with honor, dignity and justice for all concerned."

"We look to the United States for this assistance because of its 200 year history of standing foursquare on the side of the twin precepts of justice and mercy."

SSF rejects all downtown bids

All bids received for the South San Francisco downtown revitalization project were rejected last Wednesday by the City Council, more than two months after they were opened.

The low bid of $1.84 million was about 60 percent higher than architect Mike D'Amico's estimate of $1.16 million.

The bids were reviewed in early July by the council, but it decided to have the downtown revitalization steering committee review the project before taking action on the bid rejection.

That committee is in the process of deciding if the plans can be re-drawn so that the project falls within the city's $1.2 million budget.

Councilman William Borba made the motion that the bids be rejected, and Councilwoman Roberta Teglia seconded it. The decision was unanimous, with Mayor Terry Mirri abstaining.

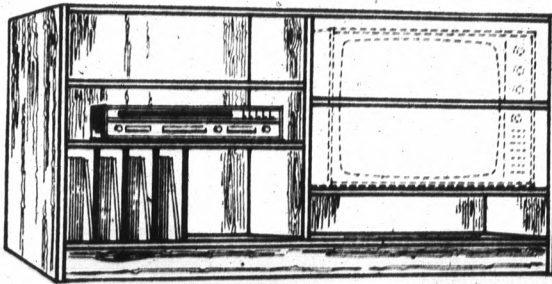

(Mirri has volunteered to abstain from voting on the project because he owns a home a block away.

He has said, however, that he has no conflict of interest.)

If the architect's plan for trimming the project cost by $700,000 is accepted by the City Council, it is expected the city would go to bid on the project again.

"This does not stop the revitalization of downtown," Councilman Ron Acosta reminded his colleagues.

Daly City woman held in slaying

A Daly City woman has been booked at the San Luis Obispo County jail in San Luis Obispo on suspicion of murder in connection with the killing of her ex-husband on the Nevada side of Lake Tahoe.

The body of Edward Joseph Tucker, 43, was found Monday on a mountain road on Kingsbury Grade, shot in the head.

Douglas County Sheriff Jerry Maple said a .38 caliber handgun was found and is believed to have been the weapon used.

San Luis Obispo County sheriff's investigators arrested Marie Ann Page, 39, of 73 Bel Mar Ave., Daly City, Thursday after she had told them about the killing near Tahoe.

But she wasn't specific about the location and was connected to the slayings only after phone calls to law enforcement agencies of the various counties around Lake Tahoe to find who had located a body, deputies said.

Ms. Page, her maiden name, had gone to a religious commune about eight miles west of San Luis Obispo and apparently had told a preacher there about the killing, after which they were notified, deputies said.

They wouldn't comment on what may have led up to Tucker's death, saying the matter still is under investigation.

Judith Soltys sets wedding

Miss Judith Ellen Soltys will wed Scot Glyn Heath of Daly City in a ceremony to be held in the St. Thomas Aquinas Chapel in Storrs, Connecticut, Sept. 29.

The bride-to-be is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph J. Soltys of Storrs and was a June graduate of the University of New Hampshire. She is an employee of The New England Research Application Center.

Heath, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph E. Heath Jr. of Daly City, is a graduate of San Francisco's Lowell High School and is currently a student of the University of Connecticut and is employed by G.F. Fox and Company in Hartford.

Attendants will include Kelly Heath of Daly City, a junior bridesmaid, and Craig Heath who will attend his brother as best man.

Parents! Your child's first job could make a difference!

Look around. Some of the most successful people you know were once newspaper carriers! There's a good reason for that. Being a carrier is more than a first job . . . it's an unforgettable learning experience. It teaches young people how to use their time wisely . . . to handle money . . . to deal with different kinds of people. It gives them feelings of confidence, pride and accomplishment for handling an important responsibility reliably and well. And what's more, it's fun! Carriers get the chance to win great prizes and exciting trips and share experiences with other young people their own age. So why not talk to your son or daughter about becoming a newspaper carrier? A small part of each day can make the difference of a lifetime.

THE DIET CORNER

By Elise Gendar, the Diet Workshop

Great expectations, or reasonable expectations and diet success are interrelated. You have to know what to expect from your weight loss.

Are you hoping that your social life will swing in a 360-degree arc, that you'll become the belle of the ball, and you'll drive men wild?

Chances are if you have a flashing personality and a ready wit, you may. However, if you've been quiet, reserved, and one of the crowd, the chances are you'll remain that way. Diets won't change the basic you. They'll simply give you the opportunity to showcase yourself attractively.

Losing weight is a big change. If you're capable of such a big change, you are capable of other changes as well. As with dieting, you must work at these changes.

If you've hidden your overweight by staying home watching television, and not making friends, being thin won't open the door, turn off the set, and turn on the people. You'll have to do that all by yourself.

You can do it in a number of ways. You can sign up for a dance course, join a swimming club, take tennis lessons, or volunteer at a hospital.

Wherever you go, be bright and friendly. Talk to people. Start the conversation. Out in a new crowd, no one knows you for your old image. Before you know it, the door will be open, the television set gathering cobwebs, and you'll have new acquaintances to polish into friends.

PASSION PUNCH

- 1/2 cup diet raspberry flavoring
- 1/2 cup diet grape flavoring
- 1 cup water
- 1 bottle diet shape-up soda

Nell Norton

Good morning, good cooks. Yogurt plain or flavored is often eaten by the spoonful straight from the carton. It's showing up in cool refreshing drinks and in delicious cupcakes such as these.

PASTEL YOGURT CUPCAKES

- 1/2 cup butter
- 1 cup sugar
- 1 egg
- 1 teaspoon vanilla
- 2 cups flour
- 1 teaspoon baking powder
- 1/2 teaspoon soda
- 3/4 teaspoon salt
- 1/4 cup milk
- 1 (8-ounce) carton plain yogurt

Yogurt Buttercream Frosting
Beat the half cup butter with one cup sugar until creamy. Beat in the one egg and one teaspoon vanilla. Mix the two cups flour, one teaspoon baking powder, half teaspoon soda and three-fourths teaspoon salt. Stir into the batter mixture alternately with the four cup milk and aall but 2 tablespoons yogurt.

Spoon batter into 10 to 14 paperlined muffin cups. Bake in 350-degree oven about 30 minutes or until cakes are done.

Cool on rack. Spread with Yogurt Buttercream Frosting.
Makes 14 cupcakes.

Discover something new and delicious from the sea...

Grande Calamari

It's something like abalone (but much more economical). It's something like scallops (but comes in large fillet and cutlet sizes). And it's a close relative of clams and oysters. But best of all, Grande Calamari (larger member of the squid family), is a delicious change of taste for tired menus.

Packaged frozen and ready to cook, Grande Calamari is easily prepared in a great many mouth-watering ways. Baked, fried, stuffed, in chowders, bouillabaisse, as an hors d'oeuvre, etc. Low in fat and calories, nutritious and moderately priced, it is the best new thing to come from the sea in many a day. Discover Grande Calamari today.

BRIGHT LIGHTS BY LLOYD JOHNSON

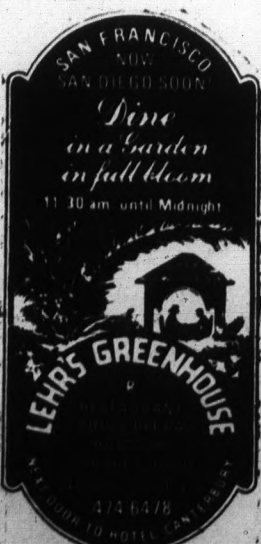

Kenny Stewart joins Finocchio's cast

Ventiloquist KENNY STEWART is back at world famed FINOCCHIO'S. The talented artist and his partners generally involve everyone in the fun-filled entertainment. Stewart performs on Friday, Saturday and Sunday, joining all the other Finocchio entertainers in an evening of excitement. Open nightly, except Mondays. Four shows, beginning at 9 p.m. The GUST family (NICK, LORRAINE and son CHUCK) have created an extensive restaurant complex right on the ocean's edge at Rockaway Beach, Pacifica. Also overlooking the Pacific Ocean, and adjacent to the restaurants, is their SEA BREEZE MOTEL for overnight accommodations. A new building soon-to-be completed will augment facilities. For a real dining experience, seat yourself around the table-top grill at HANA JAPAN Japanese Steak House and watch Co-owner/chef DENNY YUNE prepare delightful dishes right before you. Haute cuisine in a fine restaurant doesn't need to be overly expensive, points out VINCENZO LO GRASSO, owner/chef of the DAL BAFFO European restaurant in Menlo Park. "Many couples select specialty dishes and share them," said Vincenzo. "Live country western music is a popular weekly attraction at JOHN'S PLACE, the self-styled 'working man's bar' in Burlingame. Big 'spaghetti feed' for only $1.50 every Monday starting at 6 p.m.

Opera buffs should note that the Bocce Ball will wind up its held-over engagement in LEHR'S BOCCO BALL OPERA ROOM in San Francisco on Saturday, Sept. 15. Enjoy dinner first in the adjoining LEHR'S GREENHOUSE and your admission to the Bocce Room is free. ROSEBUD'S ENGLISH PUB in San Francisco is a "best bet" for prime rib lovers. Three different cuts are offered: the "English Cut" (sliced thin), thick "Rosebud's Cut," and the crusty "end cut." While ROMANO'S restaurant in Rockaway Beach, Pacifica, is rightly famed for pastas, Italian dishes and pizzas, many of the specialties of the house include seafood with a special touch. ROGER NICOLAS, owner of the elegant new LA POTINIÈRE restaurant in San Mateo, says their desserts are made right in their own kitchen under his supervision. Such delights as Creme Caramel, Vacherin Glace Marquise are offered. Take specially prepared avocado dip served in a crisp tortilla cup and you have what LA PINATA Mexican restaurant calls "Guacomole," an appetizer to get your meal off to a zesty start. NORM LARSON'S popular THE KING'S TABLE in Redwood City offers bountiful bargains of high quality, all attractively presented in all-you-can-eat buffet style. Besides lunch ($2.55) and dinner ($3.99), Sunday Champagne Brunch ($3.19) is a lavish spread.

Gong's Chinese worth looking for Many who already know GONG'S Chinese restaurant for its home delivery service of Cantonese and Mandarin cuisine seem to have difficulty locating it for lunch or dinner. If you're not familiar with the South San Francisco area, Gong's is located on Hazelwood Drive, right across from the Brentwood Shopping Center. A "Sunday special" at VINCE'S Seafood and Italian restaurant is Roast Chicken and Polenta. Many longtime patrons come from near and far to savor this traditional combination served in the old-style manner. ALAN DOTE, pianobar entertainer at SCOTTY CAMPBELL'S restaurant, Redwood City, recently flew to Los Angeles to accept an award for writing and producing "Mae's Theme" from Jaws II, an MCA recording. Genial HAEKUN CHOI, new owner of the unique CYPRESS HOUSE in picturesque Half Moon Bay, has extended his "happy hour" to seven days a week, 4 to 6 p.m. During these hours well drinks are only $1, with plenty of hors d'oeuvres from their creative kitchen. A menu specialty in the Yachtsman's Galley Coffee Shop at RAY PLUNKETT'S TAHOE MARINER hotel/casino, North Lake Tahoe, is Chicken Fried Steak with country gravy, served with mashed potatoes, vegetable and roll and butter. Includes soup or salad. For a hearty lunch, order the Hamburger Steak with fried onions at BAYHILL LOUNGE in San Bruno's Bayhill Shopping Center. It's a popular choice among patrons who flock here for lunch from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m., Mondays through Fridays. PHIL LEHR'S Pay-By-Ounce Steakery, on the lower level of the S.F. Hilton Tower, is a popular gathering place for radio and TV personalities. Among the celebrities feasting on cut-to-order steaks the other p.m. was Channel 7 sportscaster Mike Sanchez. Although the "dinner specials" at ALFRED'S in downtown San Mateo get a lot of attention, it should be remembered that there is also a complete Italian menu of other savory dishes. Child's menu also available. Open seven days a week serving breakfast, lunch and dinner. One of the authentic French dishes which keeps patrons coming back again and again to GARE SAINT LAZARE in Burlingame is Medallions de Veau "Ma Facon." Dinners only, Wednesdays through Sundays. Reservations suggested. Considering that Owner/chef TILLIE SCHOLTZ does all her own cooking at TILLIE'S 'LIL' FRANKFURT in Moss Beach, maybe it's a good thing that her German and continental restaurant is rather small. Every Wednesday night is "Family Night," with a family-style dinner being "all you can eat." Tillie is one busy lady.

American car

"Looked at dispassionately, it — the automobile — is an incredible device which no same society would tolerate."

Arthur C. Clarke, who is noted for the science fiction he writes, sees a time when cars will be powered by blasts of air or perhaps by gravity control. He wants a lighter, more efficient car with a clean and silent electric motor, built into the wheels themselves and so wasting no body space.

Although they lack Mr. Clarke's ability to enter the realms of science fiction, a lot of just plain people share his dream for a safer, less expensive yet more comfortable car.

For the editors of "Everybody's Money," they answered the question "What do you wish Detroit would do?" "Make a quality small car comparable to foreign autos?" they shouted. At last one of them justified himself for purchasing a small foreign car by saying "I'd like to buy American, but I won't buy junk."

Speaking of junk, some people who responded to the poll said "Get rid of sloppy quality control." To illustrate what they meant by that, one of them added, "Today you can almost count on your new American car being delivered with its front end out of line. In the 1930s and 1940s an out-of-line front end was unheard of, except on old or abused cars. Why is it different now?"

Then there were those who complained that "We pay more and more for less and less."

Thinking of the costs of car repairs some people wished Detroit would "standardize the parts of the engine so they can be exchanged and replaced by the owner." Some of the people — maybe they had read Arthur Clarke's science fiction — hoped for parts that would change color when malfunctioning thus indicating which areas need repair.

Some practical souls said "cut down on the number of models and styles within each make and quit changing models every year." Of course, there were those dreamers who wrote "Come up with a practical electric car." Some other dreamers dared to call for "a car that will run on chemicals made from fertilizer."

Turning to specific parts of the automobile some people told the editors of "Everybody's Money" that they wished Detroit would pay more attention to "human engineering." Citing an example, one of them said "design shoulder belts so you don't throw out your shoulders putting them on." Others opted for passenger seats that fit the contours of the body.

"Now," they wrote, "unless you have bucket seats, you're forced to sit on an overstuffed park bench."

Left handers had their say: "Put an ashtray to the left of the steering wheel for southpaws." Tall people called for more headroom, while their short colleagues wrote "Give us short people a break by making seats that can be adjusted far enough forward so we can reach the accelerator and breaks comfortably."

Airing some often-heard complaints, people who were polled said "make rear window wiper" washers a standard item." Others asked for vinyl pockets on the inside door panels to hold maps, note paper, pencils, etc. They also wanted an itemized list for basic car maintenance, "instead of making us rummage through the glove compartment looking for a dog-eared copy of the owner's manual."

Some respondents — speaking for hundreds of troubled drivers — asked the manufacturers to "install a buzzer in all cars alerting you that the lights are on or the key is in the ignition. Another thing that was listed was windshield wiper arms in flat black so they would not reflect as chrome-colored ones do."

Perhaps the most pitiful cry of all came from those who muttered "Build a car that lasts as long as the payments."

After completing their poll the editors of "Everybody's Money: Special Issue 6" suggested that "redesigning the American car, should become a new parlor game with everybody playing."

Bill Walsh keeps bringing the 49ers along

For the first time in years, it can be said that the 49ers look like a well coached team.

Of course, this column is being written after the Minnesota game, but by the time it appears the 49ers will have played Dallas, and no team in football can make an opponent look poorly coached better than Dallas can.

But for the nonce, as they say, the 49ers look like a team that will at least provide some entertainment; and if they had even a mediocre secondary, might even knock off more than a few opponents.

Coach Bill Walsh had said, in his last press conference in Redwood City before the Viking game, that the 49ers would have to play consistent, error-free football to be competitive, because, "We lack the great players, the kind of personnel that can make the big play that makes up for mistakes."

That's exactly the way the 49ers played the Vikings. Not a really big play in the bunch, but an absolute minimum of mistakes. In fact, the Vikings were the team making the mistakes, which was a healthy change for 49er fans. At that, they won on what I still consider to be an illegal touchdown.

Walsh, however, despite the lack of that "big play," might still have been surprised himself at the fluidity of an offense that played most of the game with its best blocking tight end out and with a second string fullback and third string running back.

As Walsh has continually promised, the 49ers did show a new face on offense. A lot of players came from under the wraps, but as Walsh had said in that last press conference, "You can't move the ball without poise, confidence and execution, no matter how many plays you have that look good on paper. We have nothing in our offensive bag that's revolutionary. At some point our offense will move the ball. I just can't say when, right now, but I do know that we are moving nicely toward that goal."

Well, the 49ers moved nicely towards Minnesota's goal several times, and gave fans the idea that they were an explosion waiting to happen.

Walsh had hoped that the missing element — the explosion — in the 49er makeup might be O.J. Simpson. For the moment, at least, that hope is just a dream. It might be rookie James Owens, eventually, but he is just a rookie.

Le Pacini

Walsh likens the present 49ers to the 1971 Bengals, for whom he was an assistant. "We were competing, but we couldn't make the big play. And then in 1973 we got Isaac Curtis, and he turned the offense around."

Right now, indicates the sometimes too-honest Walsh, the 49ers are between a rock and a hard place.

"We started out with some experience and a minimum of ability. Then we got a little more ability but lost some experience. Now we've got absolutely no experience, and because of that, well, it will take a while to find out exactly how much ability we have."

If it's true that good coaching brings out ability, then the 49ers will have good ability.

It becomes more and more apparent, as one watches the Giants, that more than pitching, more than a better hitting catcher, more than a left-handed power hitting outfielder, more than a deeper bench, the Giants need defense.

Last year they were near the bottom in every defensive category in the league.

Joe Altobelli had duly noted that and said that the Giants must improve their defense in 1979. It looked like some strides were being made when they started the season with Mike Ivie at first base, which seemed to tighten up the weak right side. But then Ivie got sick, slumped, began platooning and playing left field, and Bill Madlock, with his short range, was left unprotected by the no-range Willie McCovey. Joe Strain got the right side womewhat together when he arrived from Phoenix to replace the departed Madlock, but in the meanwhile, inexplicably, the left side had disintegrated.

The Giants have scored 11.6 percent of their runs on opponent errors. Opponents have scored 16.6 percent of their runs on Giants errors. In other words, the Giants are giving away five percent more runs than the enemy. Over a long season, that is a lot of runs, and may account for their one-run winning percentage of .357.

To be fair, some positive Giants statistics. They've stolen 66.3 percent of the bases they've attempted to steal, which isn't wonderful, but isn't bad. Their opponents have stolen 63.8 percent of their attempts, which doesn't speak too badly of the maligned Giants catching staff, which also has to cope with too many pitchers who don't do a very good job of keeping runners close to the bases.

Individually, leading stealer Billy North has made good on 71.4 percent of his attempts, but Roger Metzger, who has attempted only one-fifth the steals that North has, is stealing 77 percent. Johnnie Lemaster also is respectable, with 70 percent, but Ivie, believe it or not, has the team's best stealing percentage at 80. Of course, he's attempted just five steals.

The Giants in general are often maligned for their inability to punt and to get runners in from third base with less than two outs. Yet, as this is written they have safely sacrificed bunted 15 more times than opponents, and have three more sacrifice flies.

The Giants also are ridiculed for the amount of runners they leave on base, yet they have left 40 fewer than the enemy.

And they are one of the premier pinch-hitting clubs in the league, with a PH average of .274, led by Larry Herndon, Ivie and McCovey, all of whom have much higher pinch hitting averages than their total averages.

Ivie, incidentally, is another Giant who gets the national media shaft. Whenever the stats of Atlanta's young slugger Bob Horner are mentioned, a verbal asterisk is added, "Imagine what Horner's statistics might be if he hadn't missed all of spring training and then got off to a slow start with an ankle injury."

When Ivie's stats are mentioned, it's never pointed out that he had a long bout with pneumonia in early season and an even longer recovery period, during which his statistics dwindled drastically. As a consequence, he's been to bat more than 70 fewer times than Horner, yet has an identical batting average and only three fewer homers and three fewer RBIs.

Sudden thought on gentlemanly behavior: Think of how often and how many Giants players have rapped Altobelli in the press. Then try to remember when Altobelli had bad-mouthed a player for print. I'll give you the answer. Never.

Sudden Discovery (and how could I have missed this for all these years): Jack Clark is Italian. Oh, he has to share his ancestry with the Irish, but still, why hasn't Clark ever been included in Candlestick's Italian-American Day festivities?

PITCHING TRIVIA ON NON-PITCHING MATTERS: Seven pitchers have hit two grand slams in their big league careers: Tony Cloninger, Schoolboy Rowe, Tommy Byrne, Dizzy Trout, Camilo Pascual, Bob Gibson and Rick Wise. Rowe and Byrne, however, technically weren't pitchers for one of their grand slams, which they hit as pinch-hitters.

Strangely enough, a total of seven pitchers also stole home plate twice: Joe McGinnity, Christy Mathewson, Duth Ruether, Frank Owen, Ed Walsh, Jack Warhop and Red Faber.

Airwest turnabout: from cellar to first place

By SIMI LEE

For all those teams in the bottom halves of their slowpitch softball leagues, all those teams that win one, two, or maybe zero games in a season, take heart.

It's rough playing in one losing game after another, hard to maintain enthusiasm when your team is mired in last place.

But a team has gone through its novice apprenticeship, gets a little experience, and gets in some practice, the trend can be reversed.

Hughes Airwest in the San Mateo Tuesday "C" League used this formula to turn around a season that looked like it was going nowhere.

Last year, as a raw and green rookie team, Hughes had the inevitable losing season that is the bane of most brand-new teams. In San Mateo's spring "C" league a few weeks ago, Hughes won one game and lost eight.

But in the current summer-fall league, Hughes began winning. Sparked by some solid hitting, Hughes downed a plucky Visa Card team 14-6 Tuesday night to up its record to 6-0.

"We've finally started playing as a team," explained team manager-player Carol Gagnard. "Most of us have been playing together for a couple of years now, and we're just that more experienced. Now WE'RE the team the less experienced teams have to play."

Against Visa, four players came up with three hits each — third baseman Jan Elison, centerfielder Roseann Cano, first baseman Cille De Primo and pitcher-utility Lynn Kirby. Joann Melnick ripped a three-run homer in the seventh to cap the win while Gloria Evans clubbed a triple to tie the score in the early going. Cano leads the squad with a .550 average with Evans emerging as the team RBI leader with 12.

"We're just beginning to play good, fundamental softball now," commented Airwest coach Doug Maxwell. "The team is beginning to think more about what they're doing rather than just reacting. We've come a long way."

BURLINGAME
Due to the holiday, only the "C" league saw action this week. First-place Mannion's met third-place Martinelli's last night in a situation where a Martinelli's upset would produce a three-way tie for first.

The undefeated Mannion's club jumped out to an early 9-3 lead, but Martinelli's Steak Pit just kept coming. Paced by doubles from the bats of Pat Domurrah and Lynn Frye, Mannion's just managed to hang onto a 13-12 win to keep the league lead.

In other games last night the SFO Swingers, with only eight players on the field, won their first game of the league, 17-16 over Cheese Please.

SFO played defense with just two outfielders, giving Alice Leone (in left) and Diane Rodriguez (in right) a busy night. Retta Moen smashed a bases loaded triple to spark the offense.

Run-producing triples from sisters Tina and Florence Cassidy pushed P-J's to a narrow 11-9 win over Standard Brands.

Current Standings: Mannion's 6-0, Gibbs-McCormick Inc. 5-1, Martinelli's Steak Pit 4-2, P-J's Lounge 3-3, Standard Brands 2-4, SFO Swingers 1-1, Cheese Please 0-6.

FOSTER CITY

Peabody Testing won its first game of the year, upsetting Pizza Chale 5-4. League-leading American Savings was credited with a win due to a Newcomer forfeit, while the Termites buried the Victors 13-3, provoking a five-way tie for second in the eight team "D" League.

Current Standings: 2nd Half-D League—American Savings 4-0, Fielders Choice 1-1, Peabody Testing 1-1, Pizza Chale 1-1, Termites 1-1, Williams & Burrows 1-1, Newcomers 1-2, Victors 0-3.

PACIFICA

Pepsi Cola won a showdown game against Sparkie's Delivery, 6-3. Pepsi elbowed into a first-place tie with Sparkie's as the second round of play began this week.

Pepsi was down 3-2 going into the top of the sixth, but got timely hitting from Toni Massimino, who doubled for her third hit of the game to drive in a run; from Mary Billeau, who singled in two tallies; and from Mary Gadwah, who doubled in another run.

While the two league leaders were fighting it out, Heavy Head, backed by Theresa Egigian's bases, loaded double, swamped the Blues, 10-4.

Current Standings: (tie) Pepsi Cola 3-1, Sparkie's Delivery 3-1, Heavy Head Barber Shop 2-2, the Blues 0-4.

SAN BRUNO

Undefeated and ranked third in the County, Fram's Flashers, had another busy week, picking up a league win with a shellacking of Omnivest and participating in a "B" level tournament in Elk Grove over the weekend.

Fram's lost the first game of the tournament to Stoke's Smokers 7-0, but was winning the second game 4-0 in the sixth inning when an illegal substitution and poor communication with an umpire forced Fram's to forfeit the apparent win. Lori Tuccori and Karen Petromilli were Fram's top tourney hitters.

The biggest upset in league play this week occurred when Dan Co just nosed out the Flyers for their first "real" win of the season. Dan Co had won just one prior mark in the win column with a forfeit victory last month.

Donna Barfield knocked in the game-winner, a two-out grounder with runners on second and third to send Joanne Miller in with the run in the seventh.

The Hawks went over the .500 mark for the first time this season with two wins this week, over the Doves and Rainbow Palms. Donna Sylvestri and Ruth Thiel each rapped two hits, while Jane Lara drove in three buns and Chris Forsell two for a surprisingly easy, 12-0 win over Rainbow Palms.

Omnivest made a long-overdue return to the win column with a 5-2 decision over the Steamers. Lynn Ruiz doubled for her third hit of the game, while Laurie White and Sheryl Gambino singled to start a four-run fourth inning that lead to the win.

Current Standings: AMERICAN LEAGUE — Rainbow Palms 5-3, Doves 4-6, Lagoon Treasure Chest 4-6, Omnivest 3-6-1, Steamers 3-7, NATIONAL LEAGUE — Fram's Flashers 10-0, Cal Taco 7-3, Hawks 5-4, Flyers 3-5, Dan Co 2-7-1.

"B" League

Bucky's stopped Antone's 22-7 to make a bid for a playoff spot as the league moved into the second half of play. Bucky's went home run crazy. Sue Sutter and Kathy Fitzpatrick each smashed four-baggers. Helen Sears capped things off with a grand slam, while Carol Lachapelle went four-for-four at the plate.

The California Angels appear to be a shoo-in for second place after a convincing 18-9 win over challenging Cisco's Kids. Shortstop Jackie Thompson had four hits with two homers, while Pat Leon added five hits, including a round-tripper.

The Angels' defense was also perking. With one out and one on at first in the sixth, third baseman Sharon Lipitz went back on a pop-up, fell, and flipped the ball to shortstop Jackie Thompson. Thompson threw late to Kathy Keough at first; Keough threw back to Thompson for a tagout at third. Thompson then wheeled for a throw to second-sacker Dolores Bond for another tagout and an inning-ending double-play.

In other "B" league action, Bolla's Foxes clubbed Baitzer Associates 22-6.

Current "B" Standings: Bolla's Foxes 6-0, California Angels 5-1, Cisco Kids 3-3, Baitzer 2-4, Bucky's 2-4, Antone's 0-6.

Tuesday "C" League

More or Less broke out of a logjam to snap up undisputed possession of second place with a 13-9 decision over Motorola. HMS Mets licked Swenson's, 18-7.

Current Standings: Hughes Air West 6-0, More or Less 4-2, HMS Mets 3-3, Visa Cards 3-3, Swenson's Scoop 2-4, Motorola 0-6.

Thursday "C" League

Although labeled No. 2, Fat Harry's No. 2 continued to play like the league-leaders they are by beating overmatched Touch of Class 26-3 in 3½ innings last week.

FH No. 2 ripped off an 11-run first inning, capped by Lynda Groom's two-run triple, for an early decision. Chris Greenleaf's three-run homer, Gerri Gonzales' three RBIs and Diana Douglas' two-run homer paced the attack.

Fat Harry's No. 1 didn't have a bad night either, scoring a 29-3 win over San Mateo Awning in this out-of-balance league. Pat Anderson's four doubles and a single and Wendy Silliman's three singles and a double led FH No. 1.

To complete the Thursday night activities, the Bad Girls bumped off San Mateo Rentals 17-8.

Current Standings: Fat Harry's No. 2 5-0, Fat Harry's No. 1 4-1, Bad Girls 3-2, Touch of Class 2-3, San Mateo Awning 1-4, San Mateo Rentals 0-5.

SOUTH SAN FRANCISCO

The holidays knocked out this week's games on Saturdays, leaving much-improved Guy F. Atkinson and the Garden Club in an early season 2-0 tie.

The front-runners, Atkinson and Garden Club, will meet in a showdown Saturday at 1:15 p.m. at Buri Buri Park.

Current Standings: Guy F. Atkinson 2-0, Garden Club 2-0, Century 21 1-1, Federal Express 1-1, Jade Dragon 0-1, Wild Ones 0-1, See's Candies 0-2.

Softballers discover fun in SSF's E League

South San Francisco has added a new dimension to the world of men's slowpitch softball this season.

It's the "E" league, and recreation director Barry Nagel explains the philosophy. "It's for people who have never played softball before, strictly for first-timers," said Nasel.

"E" league is where D league was a few years ago, but D league has now gotten very competitive as the teams become better."

On Wednesday night, R. Dakin and Co., with the help of a four-run fourth inning, defeated the Bad News Bulls, 6-3. Top hitters for R. Dakin were Bob Jones with a two-run double, Roger Burrill with a pair of hits and Tony Lainez with two hits.

"We're out here to have fun," said Dakin coach Sy Rothbard. "It isn't that important to win, but you can have fun, win or lose. I like to see a player smile during the game. That's when you know they're enjoying themselves."

Rothbard is a former baseball and basketball coach from Petaluma. He still lives in Novato, but enjoys the softball in South City.

Pioneer Motor Bearing, the top E team in South City, took a 16-9 decision from Pauli and Griffin Blasters in another E game. Bearing was led by Ralph Martinez, who tripled, doubled and singled in the game. Rocky Sayers and Frank Verdin homered, while Lloyd Pask also tripled.

"This is a real fun league," said Sayers. "We all just decided to get together and play. It's turned out good."

Stefan Richards collected three hits, including a grand slam home run and a triple to lead the Cellar Dwellers to a 20-9 victory over Zellerbach Paper in the only other E game played Wednesday night.

SAN MATEO

United Air Lines continues to play well in the B1 league here, with wins over Antone's, 10-5, and Mohawk Gas, 22-0, recently.

Against Antone's, UAL used a fine defensive effort by Dave Rogers to take charge. Rogers threw out two runners at third base in crucial situations to help overcome Antone's. He also collected two hits and three runs batted in.

Tim Hanrahan and J.P. O'Dea each collected two hits to back the pitching of John Capuciat.

Capuciat also shut-out Mohawk on five hits, while gathering four hits and scoring three runs.

The closest Mohawk came to scoring was in the first inning when they loaded the bases with one out. But Capuciat had them popping up all night and got a pair of pop-ups to preserve the win.

Rogers collected five hits in this one, including two home runs. Jay Hertogs added four hits, 5 RBIs and three runs scored. One of the four hits was a three run homer.

In the B2 league, the Dirty Dozen finally started hitting the ball and downed San Mateo Wards, 20-9, Wednesday night.

The Dozen felt like they had a good first half season, but hadn't done as well in the second season until the win over the Wards.

Big hitters for the Dozen were Alfred Muranga with four hits, four runs scored and a pair of runs batted in. Joel Hamburg with two hits, including a three-run homer; Randy Hurst with a home run; Bob Miller with three hits and three runs scored, and Bob Biggs with three hits and two RBIs.

It was appropriate for the Unknowns to come into the BB2 league in San Mateo and wind up in a current tie for first place with a 5-1 record.

"I don't think we'll be unknown for very long," said Unknown player Chris McCoy.

It is the Unknowns who came one batter away from a perfect no-hit game a couple of weeks ago and it is the same Unknowns who have never played together before and who never practice that is in first place.

"We weren't going to play this season," said

McCoy. "But we decided to play for next year, to see how we play together. Now we are all looking forward to playing."

Many of the players were picked up by McCoy (who is also an umpire) on his umpiring assignments. McCoy and Wayne Clement have always played together since the days of Balkan Village in Menlo Park. Mike Galli and Pete Alexander came to the team from Foster City. Gary Bartz is out of San Mateo and Randy Norman and Bob Trask come from San Bruno. Dennis Spezak plays all over the Peninsula.

"You never know how a team will play together until it actually goes out and does it," McCoy said. "But the chemistry turned out right, and you can tell we all have fun playing together."

A tribute to Castelan

By TERRY DAVENPORT

Three county supervisors, all Daly City councilmen, the past and present city clerks and other Daly City department heads, the county's CETA leaders, state and federal legislators' representatives and 200 friends and relatives paid tribute to Julius F. Castelan Friday night.

Although the plucky, pint-sized resident of Daly City recently turned 81, the crowd wasn't there to mark his retirement.

Daly City Mayor Victor Kyriakis said it best: "We're here tonight not to send you on your way, but to encourage you to keep on doing what you've been doing all along."

What Castelan has been doing for the last 40 years is pleading, cajoling and demanding a better quality of life for the city's underprivileged, its senior citizens and its Spanish-surnamed residents.

Having a no-special-occasion dinner for him was Alice Gonzales' idea. As head of Daly City's Community Services Center, she has watched him tirelessly serve his community and she wanted to make sure he knows he is greatly appreciated.

The speakers who showered the balding, mustachioed man with praise, plaques and commendations at the Elks Club in San Mateo Friday night admitted that Castelan's political style is not exactly sugar-coated.

"I think you've threatened recall more than anybody else," said Kyriakis with a smile.

Master of ceremonies Frank Pacelli, who served as a Daly City councilman for many years, said there were times when "I, like many others, would have liked to punch him out."

But the recurring theme of their remarks was that Castelan is a compassionate person, the champion of the "little people" and so knowledgeable about local government that officials quake when they see him striding toward the microphone at public meetings.

During the past year, for example, he has battled water rate increases, sewer plant costs, city hiring policies, administrators' fringe benefits, profits for the local garbage company — you name it, Castelan has fought it.

His political clout comes from his no-holds-barred method of campaigning and the fact that his endorsement means a few thousand votes.

Many of those votes come from the elderly folks who call Castelan in the middle of the night to ask if he will come and fix their plumbing (of course he does, for free), and from Mexican-Americans who ask him for help finding jobs (which he does find).

Presenting Castelan with a resolution of commendation from the county Board of Supervisors, Supervisor James Fitzgerald fondly recalled how the sprightly gentleman, then 61, scrambled around on rooftops putting up Fitzgerald's giant campaign signs.

The supervisor said he asked, "Julius, is this legal?" and that Castelan replied in his "I know the ropes" voice, "Oh, yes."

Fitzgerald credited this energetic campaigner with bringing in the extra votes that won him a seat on the board.

Fitzgerald said, chuckling, that it wasn't long before Castelan was browbeating him along with the other supervisors, calling them a bunch of "fat cats."

Castelan undoubtedly would have been active in Daly City community affairs for more than 40 years if he had been in Daly City longer.

Born in Guaymas, Mexico, he crossed the U.S. border on New Year's Day, 1900, in a covered wagon at the age of 2-1/2. He claims he can still remember the fireworks that people set off that night.

Young Julius was baptized in politics early. The reason the family had to flee Mexico was because his father, a liberal, had gotten into hot water with conservative government officials.

They settled in Tucson, where Julius sailed through grammar school in six years and completed high school in three years. He remembers wearing short pants when he arrived to take a test for a college scholarship.

"The others taking the exam were these big cowboys. They took one look at me and said, 'What do you want, little Mexican?'" Castelan recalled bitterly in his raspy voice.

Castelan finished the six-hour test in a mere two hours and won the scholarship. He is very proud that he was the first Mexican-American to graduate in engineering from the University of Arizona.

After graduation, Castelan moved to Los Angeles, set up a small engineering company with his brother and got involved in national politics. They closed the firm after three construction jobs failed to materialize.

During the Depression, Castelan took a job parking cars for 10 cents a car. With his pockets full of dimes, he bought coffee and sandwiches for architects and engineers who couldn't find any work at all.

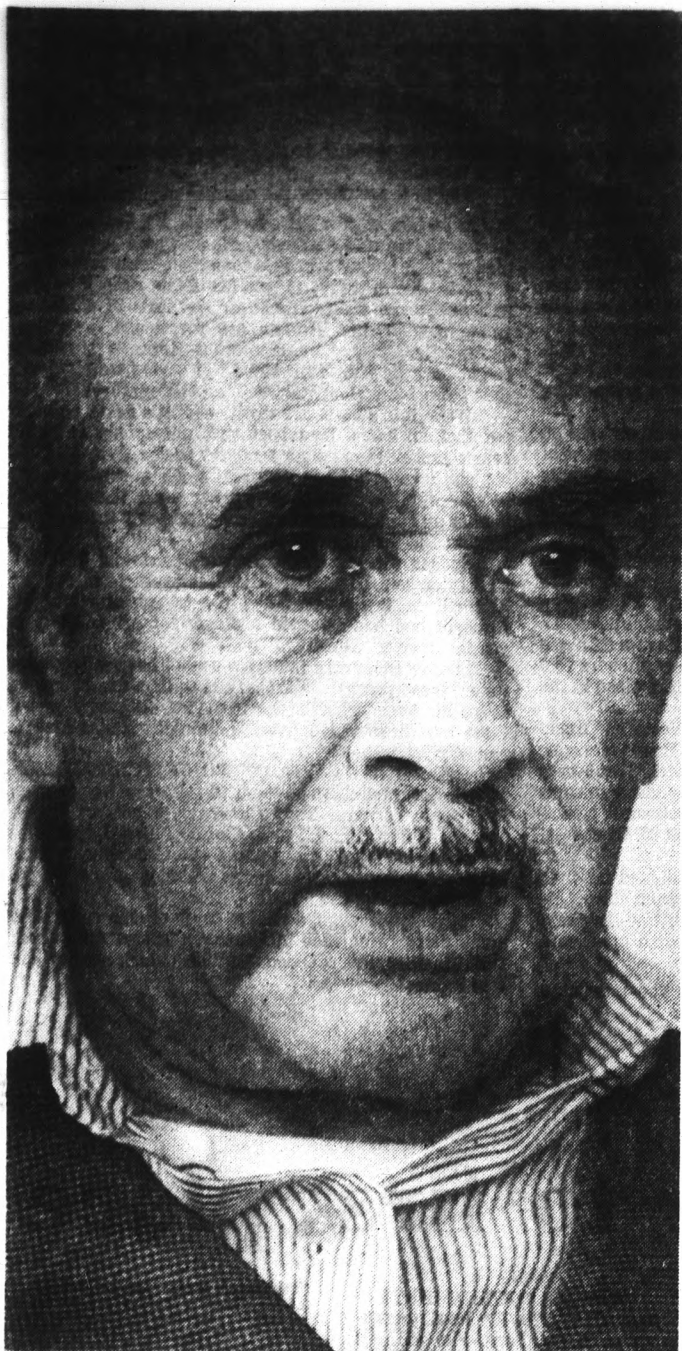

Campaigning for Franklin D. Roosevelt paid off after FDR was elected president. He was rewarded with a government job in public works that took him to San Francisco in 1939.

One responsibility was designing a new city hall for Daly City. The mayor at the time, Paul Selmi, was so impressed with Castelan that he asked him to become the city's first city engineer.

Castelan took the job, and he and his wife Carmen moved to Daly City, where they have lived in the same house ever since. Their romance, which began in a Tucson ice cream parlor, has lasted through 57 years of marriage.

But Castelan didn't see eye-to-eye with all of Daly City's officials and he served less than a year as city engineer.

After he worked for a brief time as a civil service engineer, he accepted an engineering assignment in Hawaii.

Pearl Harbor was not the place to be on Dec. 7, 1941. Castelan and 40 other engineers saw the whole attack and fired machine guns at enemy planes. He still has pieces of the shrapnel that dropped near him.

He wasn't hurt. In fact, 1941 was the last year Castelan visited a doctor — and only because he had to get some required shots.

He attributes his perfect health to "avoiding doctors and all that bull."

It was during World War II that he tried to interest the government in the "Castelan Bomb-proof Shelter" — a cushion designed to protect airplane hangars from falling bombs. He figured that the same cable-and-net device, positioned vertically instead of horizontally, would help planes land quickly and safely on aircraft carriers.

Although the shield is now in use on aircraft carriers, Castelan said he never got credit for his idea.

He has two other ideas waiting in the wings. One, the "Castelan Submarine Floater," is a tank that attaches to submarines. If they sink, it fills them with mercury so they rise to the surface.

Castelan's blue-brown eyes lit up as he mentioned his third invention. Having been burned once, he decided not to share it with the world. All he would say is that it is an energy-saving device.

Castelan has been in business for himself as a civil engineer and general contractor since 1945. He brags about the 300 apartment units he had designed for Daly City.

Through the years, he never broke the habit of attending City Council meetings — a habit he began when he was city engineer.

"In the last 35 years, I haven't missed more than 10 percent of the meetings," he said proudly.

Then he cackled his familiar "heh-heh" and added, "They call me 'councilman-at-large.'"

No one could sit through all those council meetings without learning a bit about how federal money is funneled into local projects. In 1972, Castelan founded Bay Area Regional Planning Inc., and began to use that knowledge on behalf of the elderly, the disadvantaged and Spanish-surnamed citizens.

It took him 16 trips to Sacramento, but he finally succeeded in winning federal dollars for the first senior nutrition project in the state. He has landed CETA funding for a house painting program in Daly City for the last two years.

At the same time, Castelan has worked to get more Mexican-Americans into the political arena with him by co-founding the Mexican-American Political Association. He believes he is partially responsible for the four Spanish-surnamed persons who currently hold key jobs in Daly City government.

There is no doubt about his clout. Daly City councilmen get looks of mild panic on their faces when the small man in the natty clothes rises from his seat, tam-o-shanter in hand, during the "public comment" portion of the meeting.

Sometimes Castelan praises them for a job well done. More often, he shakes his finger at them and zings them with a "you can't get away with this" speech.

Proof that Castelan's remarks are heeded and that he is well loved came Friday when he was hugged, kissed, praised and profusely thanked for his many years of public service.

After the many kind words and commendations, including copies of remarks which Rep. Bill Royer, R-Redwood City, read into the Congressional Record and a joint resolution passed by the state Senate and Assembly, came long-stemmed red roses for Castelan's tiny wife and a standing ovation for both of them.

Castelan smiled a crooked smile when it came time, at last, for him to speak.

"Believe me, when I see you from all over the city and state, I think I'm going to run for something," he said. The crowd roared with laughter.

There were those in audience who thought Castelan might blush and mutter a few humble words.

Not Castelan.

"I try hard and I do things well," he said with his head held high. "Whenever I get up before the Board of Supervisors, you can hear a pin drop because people want to hear what I'm going to say."

He thanked everyone and, in the same breath, proclaimed himself still able to climb on roofs and put up political signs.

Pacelli interjected with a smile. "We want to wish you the best, Julius, but stay out of our hair."

As usual, Castelan had the last word: "I'm 81 years old but I haven't had an operation and there's a lot of good in me yet. I've still got everything I was born with."

Watch out, Daly City.

10. It shall be mandatory upon the Contractor and upon any subcontractors under him, to pay not less than the said specific rates to all laborers, workmen or mechanics employed by them in the execution of this contract.

The Regent

By ROBIN MOELLER
Commissioner of Publicity
Serramonte planned to do things a little bit different this year in the procedure for registering students.

In the past all students schedules were planned beforehand and students received their class schedules by mail.

Because of the reported problems of students continually requesting changes in their schedules, it was decided that arena scheduling would go into practice, beginning this year.

It was thought that if students could choose their own classes they would be less likely to need to make changes through their counselors.

On Tuesday, Sept. 4, a group of student aides, made up of seniors, who volunteered in the last part of the previous school year, together with Mrs. Cahill, organized the arena schedule program.

They also made out this year freshmen's schedules.

It was decided that on Wednesday, Sept. 5, seniors and juniors would register between 8:00 a.m. and 12:30 p.m., and that sophomores and freshmen would register between 8 a.m. and 12:30 p.m. on Thursday, Sept. 6.

Students without medical and registration cards, which were sent through the mail, would not be admitted.

After the students deposited their cards, they would go to the gym where tables previously set up would be positioned, each representing different subjects, such as English, math and science.

After depositing their cards at the proper tables, students would check out in a specified area.

On Tuesday, Sept. 4, a vote was taken on the strike issue, and a strike was voted in. This had a direct effect on arena scheduling, for the program was not able to function if the teachers were picketing.

This school year at Serramonte will continue with the open campus fifth period.

Like last year, all students will have the same lunch period and no classes will be conducted during this period.

Officers for the 1979-1980 Serramonte school year are as follows:

President, Genny Hom; vice president, Leslie McNeil; secretary, Grace Light; treasurer, Maria Bautista; Commissioner of Outside publicity, Robin Moeller; commissioner of inside publicity, Carol Hall; commissioner of athletics, Liz McNeil; commissioner of elections, Rochelle Alip; commissioner of rallies, Michelle Craig.

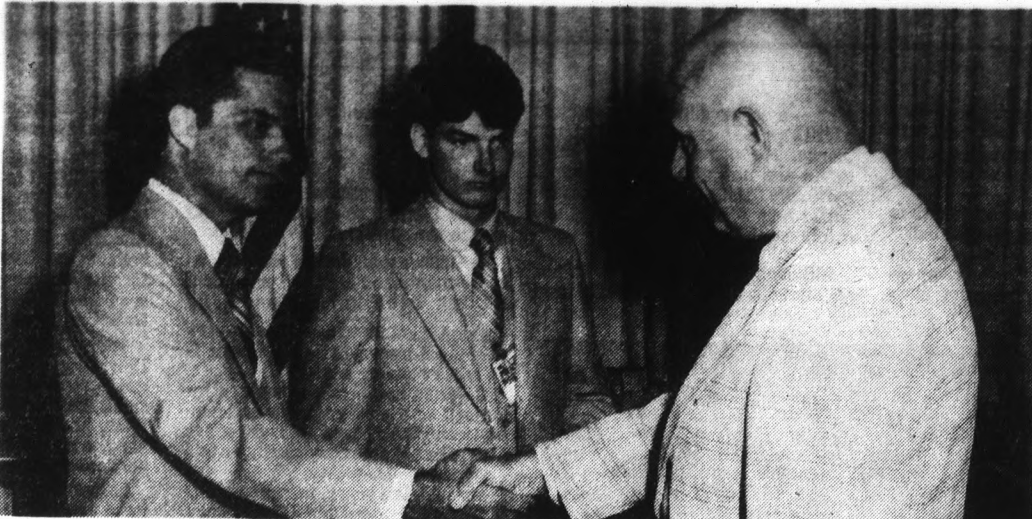

Senior class officers are Daphne Jackson, president; Regina King, vice president; Diane Wight, secretary; Jeff Boyd, treasurer.

Class of 1981 officers are Sandy Nalls, president; Nancy Won, vice president; Geraldine Aspiras, secretary.

tary: Marlana Yee, treasurer.

The sophomore class officers for this year are Gina Hom, president; Lisa Riker, vice president; Joy Limcaco, secretary; Debbie Logia, treasurer.

Freshman class officers will be elected sometime during the start of the school year.

NOW ON THE JOB

Two new police officers, Richard Van Koll, center, and Michael Warren, left, are being congratulated by David A. Hansen, chief of police for the city of Daly City.

Janet Johnstone will speak on "Human Rights and the Work of Amnesty International" at St. Martin's Episcopal Church, 777 Southgate Ave., Daly City, Sept. 23 at 12:30 p.m.

Her talk will be preceded by a luncheon at 11:30 a.m., directly after the morning service.

Ms. Johnstone, a graduate of George Washington University, Washington, D.C., has been employed by Amnesty International for the last five years as an office coordinator and regional organizer.

She was formerly associated with the Institute for Criminal Law of George Washington University Law School. There, she served as assistant to the director of the program which studied the application and effects of the Miranda decision of the U.S. Supreme Court (by which arresting officers were obliged to read the legal rights to the detainee).

The public can attend the program, which is sponsored by the Joint Social Action Committee of St. Martin's Parish and St. Andrew's Catholic Church, Daly City.

Lunch reservations should be made by calling St. Martin's Church Office, 756-6232, or Chairperson Ruth Hoppin, 992-3179, by Sept. 21.

Court of St. Mary No. 1155, Catholic Daughters of America, will celebrate its 49th anniversary with a dinner Sept. 20 at Our Lady of Perpetual Help Hall, 80 Wellington Ave., Daly City.

Chairlady of the evening, Mrs. Socorro Cuevas, says the happy hour will start at 6 p.m. and a complete chicken dinner will be served at 7 p.m.

Cost of the dinner is $7 and reservations along with checks should be made with Mrs. Cuevas, 623 San Diego, Daly City; Mrs. Remy Pax, 116 Santa Barbara, Daly City; or Regent Mrs. Rosario Nepomuceno.

Highlight of the evening will be the recognition of 24 members, four of whom are charter members, and 20 others who have 25 years or more with the court, or a combined total of 1,060 years for all 24 ladies.

Among the many guests expected to attend are Mrs. Rose Marie Webb, state treasurer; Diane Ferrari, district deputy, and the Rev. Antonio Rey, court chaplain.

READY FOR LUNCHEON

The Westlake Catholic Women of Our Lady of Mercy Parish have set noon Sept. 26 for "Luncheon is Served." Helping Chairwoman Mrs. Judy Holden, left are Mrs. Eileen Barsi, decorations, center, and Mrs. Shirley McKee, reservations, right. The buffet luncheon will be in the parish hall, also with lots of surprises. Tickets are $3.75 and may be obtained from Mrs. Shirley McKee (994-8356) before Sept. 23 or after all Masses.

EN HONOR DE NUESTRA HERENCIA HISPANICA

Reproducimos aquí las palabras del Presidente Carter para honrar a nuestros hermanos de habla hispana durante la Semana Nacional de la Herencia Hispánica, del 10 al 16 de septiembre. "Desde los primeros días de nuestra historia nacional, las personas de herencia hispanica han representado un papel vital en el desarrollo de nuestro país. Primero como exploradores, luego como colonos, ahora como dirigentes en todos los segmentos de la sociedad, los hombres y mujeres de linaje hispanico han contribuido grandemente a nuestra herencia nacional."

IN HONOR OF OUR HISPANIC HERITAGE

We reprint the words of President Carter to honor our Hispanic brothers and sisters during National Hispanic Heritage Week, September 10-16. "From the earliest days of our Nation's history, Hispanics have played a central role in our country's development. First as explorers, then as settlers, and today as leaders in all segments of society, men and women of Hispanic ancestry have contributed greatly to our national heritage."

IT'S SIMPLE...

A nail builds tall buildings... bridges canyons and rivers... makes toys... ties communication lines to utility poles... holds things together.

The newspaper is a simple idea that works wonders, too. It moves merchandise... doctors the economy... distributes jobs... finds people to do jobs... informs, educates and entertains.

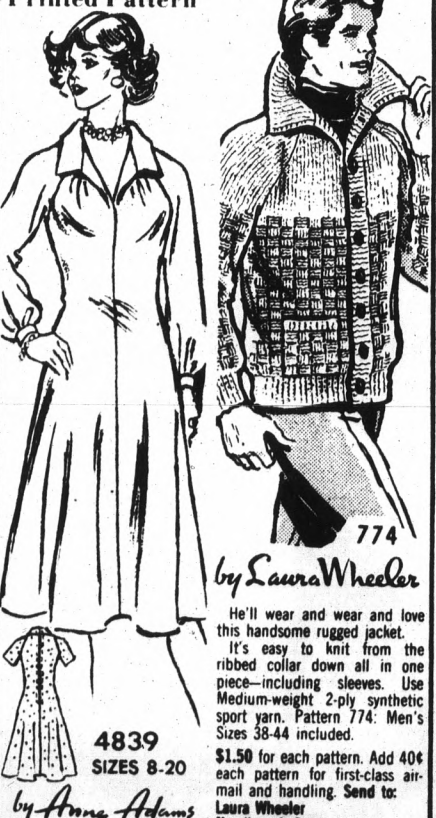

When you want to sell, buy, rent, hire or announce... think of the simple idea that works.

It's rare that you will find a home that combines the elegance, amenities and financing of this one. Located in the heart of the lovely Ocean Colony community, immediately on the golf course, this features contemporary drama in a soaring two storey enter and dramatic living room.
